

FISCAL NOTE
HB 2260 - SB 2205

April 3, 2007

SUMMARY OF BILL: Adds bomb, dynamite, explosive and chemical weapon threats to the list of zero tolerance offenses. Authorizes judges to order the suspension of the driver license of a juvenile who commits a zero tolerance offense or makes a bomb threat.

ESTIMATED FISCAL IMPACT:

Increase State Revenues - $26,800 FY07-08 & FY08-09
$59,300 FY09-10 & Thereafter

Increase State Expenditures -
$50,000 Included in the Governor's FY07-08 Budget

Assumptions:

- Approximately 500 annual suspensions.
- The suspensions will last for two years.
- Those whose license has been suspended will be eligible for a restricted driver license.
- Approximately 80% will receive a restricted driver license.
- An increase in state revenues from the collection of restricted driver license fees ($400 \times $67 = $26,800$).
- Reinstatement fees will not be collected until the third year.
- An increase in state revenues from the collection of reinstatement fees ($500 \times $65 = $32,500$).
- Beginning in the third year, the Department will begin to collect reinstatement fees from previous years suspensions and the restricted driver license fees from current year suspensions ($$26,800 + $32,500 = $59,300$).
- A recurring increase in state expenditures of $50,000 to the Department of Education for one position to provide training and collect data relative to school safety initiatives is included in the Governor's FY07-08 Budget.
